EMIGRANTS FROM ITALY DEFENDED
Ambassador to America Says New Outlet Must be Found for People
BY CARLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH
[Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.]
ROME, Sept. 25.—Hopeless of any change in the American attitude toward immigration, Ambassador Ricci, in a long interview in the Tribuna, advises Italy to seek another outlet for immigrants.
"One in which Anglo-Saxons do not so predominate that they refuse to treat with even the Latin races on a basis of equality," Signor Ricci denied the Italians had resisted Americanization saying what they resisted was Anglo-Saxonization. He declared it was a useless waste of money for Italy to send a commission to Washington just now to treat with the debt question.
Speaking of the railroad strike, he said, they were accompanied by far more bloodshed than the Fascist-Communist struggle and "provoked actions by state authorities which frequently were anything but favorable to the workers' demands. There were measures of repression the severity of which we have would judge excessive and unjustly partial."

MURDERER TESTIFIES WITH RAZOR IN SHOE
MEANT TO USE IT ON "CERTAIN ATTORNEY," CONFESSED KILLER SAYS
[BY A. P. DAY WIRE]
DENVER, Sept. 25.—Orville J. Turley, on trial in the District Court here for the murder of Mrs. Emma Wise, sat in the prisoners' box throughout last Saturday's forenoon session with a razor concealed in his shoe. Thomas Langdon, a guard at the County Jail, testified today.
Langdon offered no opinion as to what use Turley planned to make of the razor, but John de Weese, attorney for Turley, declared that the prisoner told him he intended to use the weapon on "a certain attorney" in case the attorney took the stand against him.
Langdon was called to the stand by De Weese in an effort to bring out testimony to show Turley insane.
The body of Mrs. Wise was found in the furnace pipe of a vacant North Denver house last June, a few days after she had disappeared from her home. Turley has confessed the slaying and is basing his defense on a plea of insanity.

HERRIN MINERS SHOW POWER

Accused Murderers Get Bail

MARION (Ill.) Sept. 25.—An unmistakable demonstration of the power of the miners' union in Williamson county and the sympathy held for the men accused of murder in the Herrin riots by a responsible portion of the community was staged in the Courthouse

here this afternoon when thirty-five of the defendants were arraigned and their bonds guaranteed by men worth in the aggregate $10,000,000.

For days a committee of miners, headed by Mayor A. T. Pace of Herrin, a member of the union, has been making the rounds of the merchants and bankers seeking sureties for the prisoners, on the plea that this would show

those who stood with the union in this tragedy.

The response today, when the defendants were lined up before

Judge D. T. Hartwell, was impressive. Eighty-six men, including most of Herrin's business community, stepped forward. They offered bonds to the extent of $10,000,000. Some of the sureties are worth little, others are millions. The total, however, was reached between attorneys which was ratified by the court, in which the defendants were released on bonds of $10,000 each and eighteen on $5,000 each. In addition eleven men are out on bonds at $1,000 on rioting charges.

At the show-up in the court today the county clerk, who has persons indicted were unaccompanied.

For these indicted seven indictments for murder.

Men known to be in Marion or in the county failed to come into court. It is now promised by the attorneys for the miners that all who can be found will be surrendered at once and the county officials promise to make more vigorous efforts from now on to get the fugitives into custody.

They have been allowed to drift

in at their convenience.

The question of the opening of the trial is set for tomorrow. The prosecution will move to proceed to trial on October 15. The defense, it is said, will seek to have the trial put off until February on the ground that there are 300 witnesses to be examined.

King of Bulgaria Not "Offi-

American Bride

(BY CARL—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

(Copyright, 1933, Public Ledger.)

LONDON, Sept. 25.—King

Boris of Bulgaria is not "officially" seeking a rich American wife. Not at all—but the question of whether he might take one quite unobtrusively at somewhere near the average European financial rate is left rather obscure. It is now explained that the report that Premier

Stamboulyski and the Bulgarian Foreign Minister were seeking an American bride for King Boris started from an after dinner jest of the peasant leader.

It is not denied the Premier made the statement, but a broad opening is left for inference that jests are permissible after those dinners at Geneva which form a famous connection with

League of Nations meetings.

Not only has this explanation been attributed to M.

Stamboulyski, but it is backed by the Bulgarian

Minister to London, M. Stanisloff, who maintains the King has no intention of getting married soon. On the other hand it is pointed out that the Bulgarians are getting a great many ideas since the war, so the possibility of an American queen in the literated.

FUNDING COMMISSION

GETS BRITISH PLAN

(BY A. F. NIGHT WIRE.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Resumption of meetings of the foreign debt funding commission this week was indicated today at the Treasury where it was said that immediate consideration would be given to the general situation

prior to the beginning of interest payments by Great Britain.

The principal question to be determined is whether this government shall acquiesce in the request of Great Britain that an approximation of $10,000,000 be made for the interest on $5,000, on November 15, $25,000,000 but at the rate of 5 per cent while the act creating the commission authorizes the funding of foreign debts with interest at 4 1/4 per cent.

Great Britain has suggested that an approximate amount of interest be paid in October and such adjustments as may be necessary to be worked out by the commission and the British financial mission which is expected to reach this country late in October.

DAILY TRADE TALK

Weather Slows Retail Buying; Oil Production Gains; Living Up to Code of Ethics

BY CHAPIN HALL

Trade follows the flag—the weather flag. Unseasonal days eat heavily into retail gross. Summer buying is over, yet with the temperature flitting about the mark there is precious little incentive to dash about buying heavy undergarments, ear muffs or overcoats. Straw hats are passe, but who is going to trade the comfort of the brown-tinted lid for a confection of horsehair or plush with the breath of a superheated desert meeting one more than half way.

The vacation season is over, but the vacationer is still reminiscent, and business in many lines is marking time pending temperature modifications. This appearance, however, is largely on the surface and intermittent; for the statistics covering definite periods show a continual move toward higher levels.

For instance, six representative department stores in Los Angeles show an increase in sales during August compared with the same month last year of 7.2 per cent, while the percentage of increase is compared with July, 1922, is 26.7 per cent.

Other figures made public by the Federal Reserve bank give an insight into retail business, are:

Percentage increase of stocks at close of August, 1922, compared with close of same month last year, 20.4

MEN AND BUSINESS

Lesson of the Strikes; How the Settlements Affect Either Side of Controversy

BY RICHARD SPILLANE
(Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.)

Unquestionably, the belief of employers generally before these strikes was that labor had not borne its share of liquidation and for sound prosperity it was necessary to get wages down from the peaks. Today the attitude of employers is somewhat different. It would be expressed best in the statement that railroad executives and mine operators are not so insistent on wage reductions as an absolute necessity to national stability as they are that wages cannot go higher without ruinous results.

A COSTLY DRAW

In effect labor dodges liquidation to the degree other elements of business were forced to sustain, and mine operators and railroad executives accept this as a settled fact. It is not unlikely this changed viewpoint of road and mine operators will have its influence on the labor question in all branches of industry.

In the final analysis labor may be found to have gained more than it lost today, but it certainly paid a heavy price in wages lost.

If labor leaders wish to do something really constructive, they will endeavor to educate workers in ways of thrift. Bankers are authorities for the statement that credit used by wage earners' families is increasing and that a large part of the credit is used for luxuries or extravagances, and not for articles of necessity. Such employment of credit is costly. Those who extend it usually lose it with a bad debt margin that makes the honest buyers pay a sinful price.

STEEL MILL OPERATIONS INCREASING

New Average 65 Per Cent of Capacity; Market is Active; Range of Prices

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 25.—Steel mill operations are increasing slowly, having gone up to 65 per cent of capacity since the low rate of 50 per cent reached in August. This increase in tonnage is giving mills an opportunity to make substantial headway toward clearing off obligations. Prices range substantially as follows: Bars, $1.90 to $2.15; plates and shapes, $2 to $2.25; black sheets, $2.35 to $2.50; galvanized sheets, $2.75 to $2.90. Early delivery higher prices are being paid on small lots, such as $2.25 for bars and $2.75 for sheets. The conventional spread between black and galvanized sheets remains $1 per 100 pounds.

Finished steel markets are moderately active, but the tonnage turnover is light.

Little change is noted in the pig iron market, which has been stagnant for several months. Supplies are so limited that any considerable volume of buying would force prices well higher. Quoted prices, largely nominal, remain $24 for Bessemer, $30 for basic and $35 to $36 for foundry iron, valley basins.

Buyers of nails and wire product generally are conservative and are confining purchases, when made at the $2 advance to the near-by future.

A sharp advance is noted in the steel scrap market, heat-treated steel going up to $21.50, a big sale for delivery in the Pittsburgh district having been made at this price. This represents a total advance since the first of the month of $4. Valley mills are believed to have paid up to $22.50.

THE COUNTRY OVER

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Sept. 25.—Banks of this district are in better condition to withstand demands on them than they were three months ago. This is taken as an evidence of general improvement of business in this region. The figures show that deposits, cash holdings and total resources have increased, while loans are smaller.

Motor trucks are being used to haul cattle to the Kansas City livestock market from points 200 miles distant. This move was brought about by the shortage of railroad cars and the difficulty encountered in getting stock and feeding supplies to market. This business is expected to cut into the short haul of the carriers even after rail traffic returns to normal. Business men now are showing keen interest in the southwestern business congress, which will meet in Tulsa, Okla., October 18.

SECURITIES NOT SHAKEN BY WAR

Market Ignores Near East Alarms of Conflict

Domestic Business Expected to Show Improvement

Railroads Appear to Have Large Profits Ahead

BY MONITOR
(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
(Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Various explanations may be advanced for the uncertainty with which security prices have moved in the last week, but a reasonable appraisal, it would seem, should lay the major emphasis on the international market position and the degree to which this has been accentuated by the critical state of affairs in Asia Minor. An armed clash in the Near East is admittedly provocative of serious consequences, giving due consideration to racial and national jealousies and the extraordinary alignment of opposing interests.

In spite of disturbing headlines, the general market view here has been in the effect that the crisis would not develop into a confrontation and that, after warlike postures had satisfied military pride, diplomacy would adjust the controversy by some sort of makeshift or compromise. In view of all the elements of discord, it is not believed that the Balkan question is susceptible of immediate and final settlement.

ADVANCE PREDICTED

So far as the technical position of the market is concerned, no categorical conclusion would be accepted. Skeptics point out that the market has had an advance of a generally continuous character since August, 1921. Expectations have been widely current that there would be a period of increased activity and rising prices this autumn. Powerful groups have been aggressive.

EXEMPT FROM PERSONAL PROPERTY TAXES IN CALIFORNIA

- 1. SECURITY. This issue of bonds will be secured by a closed first mortgage on the modern Class A nine story office, store and theater building and leasehold interest located at the northwest corner of Seventh and Hill Streets, Los Angeles. The building has a frontage of 149 feet on Seventh Street and 114 feet on Hill Street, extending to the alley. This site is considered one of the most valuable in the city, being in the heart of the business, theater and shopping districts, and the building, equal in every respect to the best in the city, is completed and has been in full operation for over two years. The ground lease, which is very valuable, expires July 31, 1969, or 32 years beyond the last maturity of these bonds; the rental is $54,000 per year. All of the stores and offices are occupied by satisfactory tenants.
- 2. APPRAISEMENT. The building, known as the Pantages Building, was completed in August, 1920, and is thoroughly modern in every respect. It has been conservatively appraised at its present day value by two independent construction engineers, the lower figure being $1,276,196. This appraisement attaches no value whatsoever to the leasehold interest nor to the theater equipment.
- 3. EARNINGS. Present earnings from the rentals from the leases on the building, together with a statement of expenses based on last year's operations, are as follows:
Rentals from Theater, Stores and Offices...$224,040.00
Ground Rent, Taxes and Expenses...110,074.39
Net Earnings Available for Bond Interest and Maturities...$113,965.61
The Theater is leased to the theater company at a rental of $10,000 per month for a period of fifteen years and the lease is executed and guaranteed by Alexander and Lois Pantages. The net earnings of the building at the present time are equal to over 2 1/2 times the maximum interest charge and show a substantial margin over principal and interest requirements.
- 4. INSURANCE AND TITLE. Fire insurance to the full insurable value is required to be provided and maintained at all times, and provision is also made for rebuilding, repairing and restoring the building in case of partial or total destruction.
- An unlimited guarantee of title or leasehold policy of title insurance will be furnished by the Title Guarantee & Trust Co. of Los Angeles.
- 5. GUARANTEE. In addition to the above security these bonds will be the direct obligation of Alexander Pantages and his wife, Lois Pantages, and each bond will be executed by them. Alexander Pantages is regarded as one of the most successful operators in the theater business, operating in 36 cities, included among which are Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, San Jose, Long Beach, San Diego, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, Spokane, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Detroit, and Cleveland, in the United States, and Toronto, Hamilton, Vancouver, Victoria and Regina, in Canada.
- Mr. Pantages entered this field in 1900 and from the earnings of his business has accumulated many large investments in real estate, leases, bonds, etc., until his net worth is conservatively valued, exclusive of his interest in the operating theater business, at $4,000,000, which is approximately six times the total amount of these bonds. His net income for the past three years has averaged $77,352.05 per annum, or over nine times principal and interest requirements of this issue. In addition to the net worth as set forth above, Mr. Pantages values his holdings in the theater business at a very large figure. Upon completion of this financing, these bonds, with $500,000 mortgage indebtedness secured by his Seattle and Portland buildings, will comprise the total of his liabilities.
- 6. PURPOSE. The proceeds of this issue of bonds will be used for additional operating capital.

The creation of this bonded indebtedness, as well as the drafting of the trust indenture, has been prepared by Messrs. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher of Los Angeles.

MOTHER PLANS "TO GET" STAR

Will File New Suits Against Rawlinson

Actor Must Pay for Wrongs,
She Declares

Daughter's Case Dropped by Prosecutor

Dorothy Clark, 17-year-old dancer, and her mother, Mrs. Ethel Clark, who lost their case against Herbert Rawlinson, motion picture star, yesterday when Chief Dep. Dist. Atty. Keyes dismissed the charge against the actor for asserted attacks on the young dancer, will now try to carry out their threat "to get him."

Following the dismissal of the charge, Mrs. Clark, who is at present the plaintiff in a $200,000 damage suit against Rawlinson in the East, announced she would bring two more suits against him in the next few days.

A few days ago Dorothy, in the presence of her mother, declared that if they failed to convict Rawlinson on the criminal charge they would "get him" on some other charge.

TO SEEK DAMAGES
The two suits will represent both mother and daughter. One suit will be an attempt to regain the amount of money Dorothy would have made if she had been dancing. The mother asserts the girl has lost several thousand dollars because of waiting on the charge against the actor. The other suit will be in behalf of the mother-remuneration because of worry and a general breakdown following her daughter's plight with the film star, Mrs. Clark stated.

"At the time the charges were instituted Dorothy was preparing to sign a contract in New York to do some dancing," Mrs. Clark stated yesterday afternoon. "But because of this trouble we have had with Herbert she has lost this money she could have made."

"He will have to pay for this. He has ruined her life."

"I have only three months to live—three months to rectify some of the previous wrongs which have been heaped upon her so early in life. The doctor a few days ago examined me and told me I was worn out completely—that I had only three months to live."

SHOULD PAY
"It is only right for him to have to pay for this. He is the sole cause. I have lost my health because of worry over my child."

"I can't say exactly when I will file these charges but I do know they will be filed and filed soon. I want a good fighting lawyer that can be scared off when the time for battle comes."

"I represent the mothers of California in my fight and I am sure I will win."

Mrs. Clark stated she and her

NEW STAR IN MOROSCO HOME

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE)
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 22.—Oliver Morosco today announced a new star had dawned on the theatrical horizon. By that he meant that he and Mrs. Morosco yesterday became the parents of a baby girl. Guests at the St. Francis Hotel, where the Moroscos live and where the little cooling thespian is just now the only baby, paid their homage in a deluge of flowers.

daughter would leave Los Angeles shortly after filing these other suits "now that this charge has been dropped against Herbert." She said the marriage of her daughter to Karl Elma would be annulled if possible.

QUIZ DROPPED
After a week of investigation into charges made by the dancer and her mother against Rawlinson it was announced yesterday by Chief Dep. Dist. Atty. Keyes that the entire matter is ended so far as the District Attorney's office is concerned. It was charged by Mr. Keyes that Mr. Rawlinson met the girl after she and her mother had filed a suit for $200,000 damages against him, and attacked her in his car as it stood in front of the Clark apartment.

It was stated by Mr. Rawlinson that the girl called him on the telephone, said she was hungry and needed money and asked him to help her. He said he drove to her apartment, stopped in front of the building and handed her $20. He said he only stopped a few minutes and then drove on. The mother asserted that she watched from behind a tree and saw him attack her daughter.

ISSUES STATEMENT
Mr. Keyes issued the following statement regarding the case:

"After a thorough investigation of the matter affecting Herbert Rawlinson, I am convinced that the story of Miss Clark and her mother is not such as to appeal to the sound judgment of any reasonable person. The claim is made by Miss Clark and her mother that Mr. Rawlinson, with a suit for $200,000 pending against him brought by the mother, met Miss Clark, a married woman, a block from her home, invited her into his automobile and there on the public highway was guilty of certain immoral acts, all of which it is claimed were observed by the mother."

"In my judgment no criminal prosecution should be allowed to be brought on this statement of facts as it is manifestly untrue, especially in view of the fact that an application for a complaint against Mr. Rawlinson involving this same girl had previously been denied by this office for the reason that the acts then complained of had been

Seek Treasure Thought Hidden by Bandit Gang
Disguised as laboring men by the simple process of donning cowls, Deputy Sheriff Devar and Stenard yesterday started out on a treasure hunt in the heart of Los Angeles. They went to 4117 South Van Ness avenue, made their presence known to the owner of the property and crawled underneath the house by squeezing through a small aperture.

Through the "grapevine" of prisoners in the County Jail it was whispered that members of the gang which attempted to hold up the cashier of the Union Ice Company, resulting in the death of three of the band, had hidden much loot of watches and diamonds under the house. The three killed, Ed Burton, Frank Adams and Kenneth Flenor, were the only ones who might have named the hiding place.

Instead of diamonds the deputies found only cobwebs, spiders and dust, they said. However, they intend to continue the search. They will crawl under two more houses in the near future.

FARRAR CONCEDES NICE TRIP
But She Wouldn't Talk to Reporters Herself; She Sent Her Manager

For sixteen months Geraldine Farrar has not spoken to a reporter. It is just an aversion she's developed since they quit writing about how good she was and devoted their space instead to discussing her marital relations with one Lou Tellegen, whose clothes she threw out of their home recently, and whom she's been suing for divorce since then.

Yesterday Miss Farrar did not break her rule. In the fastnesses of her private Pullman New York, parked in the Southern Pacific yards here, she stayed when reporters and photographers expressed desire to see and hold converse with her.

She sent out Mister Foley, who is her manager.

Mister Foley said he didn't know a thing about Miss Farrar's personal affairs. Which is one of the things Miss Farrar is paying him for. But, anyway, Mister Foley was quite willing to admit that the fact that she is to open her concert tour in San Diego Monday and will be in Los Angeles for a concert the following night.

Thank you; good night!

VENTURA, Sept. 22.—Inquest into the cause of death of persons killed in the wreck of a Southern Pacific train at Montaville Friday night, will be held at Oxnard tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. An expert in semaphores and numerous officials and employees of the railroad company will be present to testify.

for his fellow-editors the ideal newspaper.

Benjamin F. Pearson of the Southern California Edison Company spoke on the subject of the "Big Job." He referred to the great work which the power company is doing in the High Sierras, but declared that the biggest job that his company was doing or that other corporations could attempt to do is to develop real Americans.

Carl E. McKay, field secretary of the Automobile Club of Southern California, described the opposition that had been manifested by the present State administration to the highway development program, which the club has advocated. He declared that State engineers have been forced to recognize the recommendations which the club has made from time to time and that they have been adopted in large measure because of the failure of many of the highways to meet the demands made by heavy travel. He declared that while the club had not as an organization supported Mr. Richardson in his primary campaign the directors had done all they could to aid him as individuals. He said that these men had favored Mr. Richardson because they felt certain he would do all that he could to aid in completing the highway system of California.

URGES SOLDIER AID
Dep. Dist. Atty. Fitts explained briefly the measures which are listed on the November ballot as Propositions 1 and 2. They are the so-called soldier aid measures. Mr. Fitts declared that the measures would not add one penny to the taxes of the State.

The luncheon and morning meetings were conducted by Mr. King. There were three speakers besides Mr. Richardson at the luncheon meeting. They were: Louis H. Roseberry, chairman of the reception committee; D. M. Reynolds, vice-president of the First National Bank and Woodworth Chum, publisher of the Shopping News.

Mr. Reynolds in his talk read what he described as one of the last written statements of Franklin K. Lane. The former editor in this statement depicted the potency of the press and its value to the nation. Mr. Reynolds entered his address about this theme.

After the conclusion of the luncheon meeting the visitors left for the automobile trip in fifty-three closed cars.

J. R. Gabbert of Riverside; E. G. Lewis, Alhambra; Prudence Agency, Los Angeles; At C. Joy, Fresno; Rupert Hughes and Mr. Richardson were the speakers at the evening banquet.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)
MODESTO, Sept. 22.—The trial of six striking shompen of the Santa Fe shops at Riverbank on a charge of kidnapping Clarence A. Bradford, night foreman of the shops, July 19, was continued today from October 17 to December 12, on motion of the defense. The defendants are at liberty on $10,000 bail each.

It's Not Necessary to Shampoo
It is frequently if it is not properly cleaned, each use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and drying shampoo that we recommend to our readers is a hair cream. It is a very little expense by dispensing with the use of shampoo. It is a cap of hot water, enough so it is easy to apply to the hair. It is a very strand of hair, chemically softening and cooling in its use as well as beneficial to both hair and scalp. After rinsing out it is fresh, clean and free from dandruff, while the hair is evenly, developing a softness that is very heavy.

MARK OF CONFIDENCE
 The market reports say that confidence has returned. It is a good thing that it is not the confidence men who have come back. That is something different again already.

THERE'S A RAISIN
 It is reported that since the tragedies at Smyrna the commission men at Fresno have advanced the price of their Smyrna raisins and Smyrna raisins 1 cent a pound. This seems a rather long way around for an excuse, but it is there.

HEROIC TREATMENT
 A man has just undergone a very serious surgical operation in order that he may have full enjoyment of his radio outfit. In another session he may be plugging up his ears to keep out static spilling or the Catalina conversations.

WHICH SHALL IT BE?
 It is said that there is a prospect of Germany going dry because the people need the barley for bread. However, old habits are hard to sever. There is a feeling that if it came to a showdown the average German would rather drink his barley than eat it.

AMONG THE RINGERS
 The State horsehoe tournament will be held at Long Beach next week. This sporting event makes a good curtain-raiser for the Olympic games, which must come to Southern California some day. Tell the folks that we have some of the ablest shoe-fingers in the country.

LOST MOTION
 Among other fatalities it is noted that there is an increase of 25 per cent in the business of the dead-letter office. It is said that a large slice of the campaign literature sent out by political candidates brings up in the dead-letter office—which is where it belongs. The candidate should even know the right address.

HINDSIDE FOREMOST
 James Middleton Cox, who has been investigating Europe, says that in back of the German mind and way in back of the French mind the idea of what is right in reparations is not widely variant. That is the trouble with the Democratic leader—the back end of people's minds is all he gets. They gave him that in 1920.

FINANCIAL NOTE
 Now Henry Ford is said to be richer than Rockefeller, but if it wasn't for the price coming from Rockefeller's well-known Ford neither he nor his family nor so many others as it stands, the Ford income is said to represent the earnings on a fortune of nearly $2,000,000,000. Poor old John D. has to worry along on half that.

THE MILKY WAY
 On account of a war among the dairy-men milk is now selling in San Francisco for less than 10 cents a quart. Lots of the inhabitants are said to be deserting their bootleggers and learning to drink the stuff. If they once get used to the milk they may never care for the hops again. There will be no sport in breaking the Eighteenth Amendment.

HARD LUCK
 This is a hard year on queens and empresses. Now it seems that Empress Zita, widow of Charles of Austria, has lost all her money through the failure of the bank in which her little fortune was deposited. She has lost a throne, her husband and her pocketbook all within a brief span. First thing we know Zita will have to go into the movies.

THE SHELL GAME
 Uncle Sam is using half an egg for breakfast for all his vast family. According to the Department of Agriculture the little brown hen has produced 23,000,000,000 eggs this year and this is another record. This is about the biggest thing in the shell game that the universe has ever been dalled upon to review. It is all right to have somebody laying for you if it happens to be an old hen.

THE DIFFERENCE
 In England a strike in the street-car or tramway service is threatened. The wages object to a cut of 10 shillings in the wages, which would bring the pay of motor-men and conductors down to the equivalent of our $15 a week. Railway men in America figure that $15 a week would only keep them in lunch money. It has been a long time since they have had to take a weekly ration like that. But a $15 envelope is considered a rather good one in England.

THEY ALL CAN
 The fruit pack in California this season is the greatest ever known and this is saying a whole lot. The canneries have been working overtime and have put up a lot of fine fruit that could not be shipped. But because of the railway strike. It will be a glad year for those who begin house-keeping on a can-opener and a couple of jars records. California has been kind to them. There has been a wonderful pack of fruits and sea foods and the quality has been of the best. The motto of Miss California is: "I can."

THE BOSS WINS DEFEAT
 The so-called victory of the McCabe machine in the organization of the Republican State Central Committee in San Francisco last Saturday was the first big defeat Boss McCabe and his machine of wasters have suffered in many years.
 Seemingly defeated when he failed to obtain the selection of a State Central Committee chairman independent of the political machine, Richardson was the real victor. In refusing to bow his head to the yoke of Boss McCabe, he demonstrated qualities of mind and of character that mark him as a man of courage and integrity and a leader of whom the people may be proud and in whom they may place the utmost confidence.

As much as Boss McCabe and his machine henchmen would desire to have Richardson charged with bolting the party organization, the facts are too clearly apparent to permit of any such misinterpretation. Richardson tried with all of his energy to obtain the election of a State Committee chairman devoted without bias to the party interests of all Republican nominees, a chairman devoted to the political interests of Senator Johnson as much as to those of Richardson, but a chairman to whom Boss McCabe might not issue unchallenged orders and instructions.

Richardson valiantly met the issue—and won. Had he surrendered his pledge to "kick the State machine out of politics," had he made shameful acknowledgment of McCabe as his political master, he would have been discredited by the machine, but he would have dishonored his word and invited the inevitable and destroying indignation of the voters of California who nominated him for Governor because he guaranteed to end boss rule and the attendant evils of boss rule in California.

There was no issue of party principle or party policy involved, only the issue of whether a Republican nominee for Governor would give his allegiance to the people or to a boss—Boss McCabe.

The easy course would have been to submit and turn over the affairs of government to the experienced hands of the boss, for fighting a boss requires real manhood, real rock-bottom courage and more than an ordinary amount of intelligence.

Richardson chose not to submit; he chose to fight. The manner of his defiance to Boss McCabe and the McCabe machine stamps him as one fully competent of the treachery and pitfalls he may encounter and fully capable of surmounting all the dangers to be met.

With no desire to pass harsh judgment, it may be recalled that four years ago the Republican State Central Committee met to elect a chairman. The nominee for Governor was William D. Stephens, who had been nominated on a platform of economy and efficiency.

Those who know Mr. Stephens best have never questioned his honest intentions; many have never been able to reconcile their estimate of Mr. Stephens with his record for broken promises, for his inefficient and extravagant administration, in Los Angeles county thousands of voters who entertain a warm personal liking for the Governor voted for Mr. Richardson.

Gov. Stephens himself may have been bewildered by this loss of support just before or immediately after the election. Surely he can have no illusions now. In San Francisco it is said Boss McCabe betrayed Gov. Stephens at the primary, Aug. 29, 1922. What the machine boss may have done or left undone in the defeat of Mr. Stephens in the recent primary election is not of interest.

His real betrayal of Mr. Stephens was four years ago, when he forced the gubernatorial nominee to accept him as a member of his administration. Mr. Stephens had his chance, just as Friend Richardson had his, to say "no" to Boss McCabe and to tell McCabe and his myrmidons they no longer could rule by invisible government in California.

Mr. Stephens accepted the McCabe regime. Perhaps he was helpless to prevent, certainly he made no public effort to prevent, the orgy of waste, extravagance and inefficiency fostered by the machine. There is, therefore, still a grain of comfort for Mr. Stephens in defeat, for it was at McCabe, rather than at himself, who merely represented the outward aspects of responsibility, that the people struck.

Richardson already has shown that he means to make good on the job and that he will fire the wrecking gang and put a construction crew on the job.

How well does it now appear that the Republican platform adopted at Sacramento in the party convention last week spoke truly of him when it said:

Friend W. Richardson possesses an independent, thoughtful and analytical mind, capable of understanding and meeting all of the grave responsibilities and duties that devolve upon the Governor.

He is not the representative of any class or group, but is a true representative of the spirit and ideals of the Republican party and of the great majority of the people of California, whom he has served so well in the past. He deserves the support of all citizens.

By this early revelation of his good qualities Mr. Richardson plainly shows that he and not Boss McCabe will exercise the prerogatives of Governor after Jan. 8, 1923.

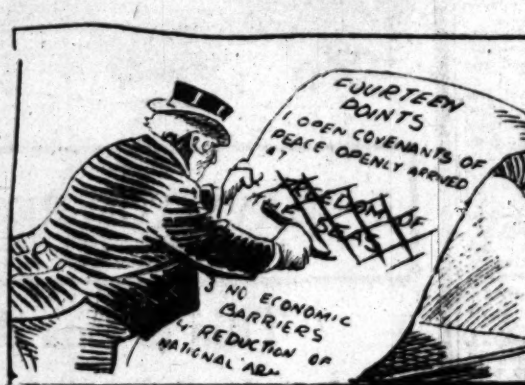

THE UNWRITTEN LAW
 The celebrated unwritten law, that shadowy creature, has stalked ghostly into the homes of two families in the last week and departed in a welter of blood. Into another home it came, showed its leering face, waved its arms frantically, whispered hoarsely for death, and departed, unanswered. No one knows quite what the unwritten law is, what its jurisdiction or exactly what crimes it covers, but everyone does so and so understandingly when the unwritten law is mentioned over a bullet-ridden corpse. It is one of those living paradoxes in a Christian nation dedicated to the commandment and the law. "Thou shalt not kill." It is a tragic specter that has haunted the American mind, a wraith of the past when every man was a law unto himself.

War and the unwritten law, a pair of grisly cohorts, seem to be the only modern justifications for one man's taking the life of another. An American, according to the unwritten code, must go out immediately and shoot the man who has violated his home to preserve his own honor so that he may hold up his head among his people. This code ranks with the two

Two years ago France threatened the unity of the Allies by insisting upon taking independent military action in Germany.

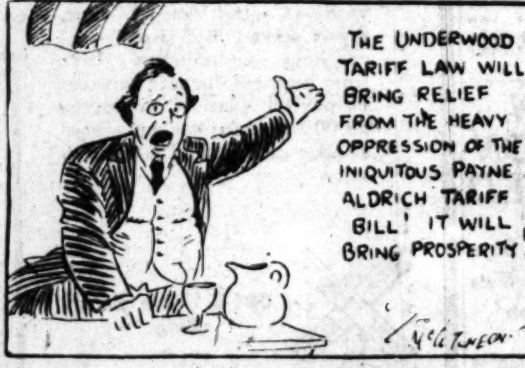

Today Britain threatens the unity of the Allies by insisting upon taking independent military action, if necessary, in the Dardanelles.

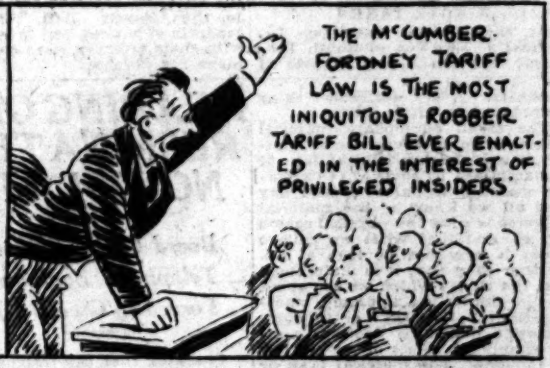

Three years ago England emphatically eliminated the "Freedom of the Seas" principle from the "Fourteen Points."

Today Lloyd George is ready to fight for the "Freedom of the Straits."

Nine years ago Democratic orators predicted the Underwood tariff law would bring prosperity, whereas, in fact, its passage was followed by a steadily increasing depression, which was relieved only by abnormal war orders.

Today Democratic orators are predicting dire consequences of the new McCumber-Fordney tariff law. Will they be equally wrong this time?

well-known expressions which, when used pertinently, mean fight anywhere in America, both scrawny children of an age of chivalry when the slap of a gauntlet across the cheek effected a thrilling duel. The word law is now the gauntlet and a bloody-nosed fist fight is the inglorious result. Notice the three variations of the unwritten law in the late news.

A police officer, a sworn guardian of the laws of the country, made a desperate attempt to murder a freeman, likewise a guardian of the safety of the city, and now sits serenely in a cell having righted a wrong and done his divine duty according to the code. What has he done? Heaped one tragedy upon another, thrown his wife and children into the calcium light of notoriety and branded himself as a would-be murderer.

Yesterday a wife, abetted by her husband, tried to take her father's life because he "had destroyed her own," and in the process has uncovered an amazing story of incest which marks her child as an outcast and establishes her in the public eye as an object of sympathy.

However, a college professor in Indiana, apprised of his wife's disgrace by her own confession, did not rush out with a pistol to shoot the other man and "avenge his honor." Instead he chose to rely upon the laws of the country to deal justly with the breakers of the civil and marriage laws and give the child a fair and equal chance at life. In consequence he is held up as an object of sneering derision by the advocates of the unwritten law. "A yellow dog who wouldn't protect his own home—dragged it all into the courts." These would have applauded him had he "avenged his honor" by murdering the "other man," breaking up another home and making a child homeless.

The three episodes are but three methods of solving the same problem. Take your choice. In a civilization as complex as ours, with its inextricable tangles and constantly recurring triangles, the invocation of the unwritten law is a tragic practice. The man with the pistol belongs to another age.

TWO MINUTES OF OPTIMISM
 BY HERMAN J. STICH

Where Our Leaders Come From.
 Every once in a while we hear the remark that the opportunities to succeed by sheer merit are not nearly so great today as they were years ago; that it is pull and other connections that today only too frequently reap the fruits that in other days were gathered by industry and ability.

One of our great statisticians has gone to the trouble to investigate this whole question and his figures show that not only is this idea erroneous, but that the opportunities are even greater today than they were years ago.

He goes a step further and maintains that the opportunities for the poor man's success are even greater than those of the rich, illustrating as follows:

"In connection with the study of America's greatest industries I became interested in the history of the men who were at the head of these industries. There were seventy especially prominent. This study showed that America's greatest railroad builder, Edward B. Harriman, was the son of a minister; that America's greatest magazine editor, George Horace Lorimer, was the son of a minister; that America's greatest administrator, Herbert Hoover, was the son of a minister. The study also showed that E. H. Gary, H. C. Frick, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and F. W. Woolworth were all sons of poor farmers.

Were the fathers of our great captains of industry college graduates? No. Were the fathers of these great captains of industry bankers? No. Were they rich manufacturers and merchants? No.

These great captains of industry, these men who have built America's greatest roads, factories and stores, are the sons of poor parents—the sons of farmers and ministers and wage-workers. The statistics of this particular study even show that the great majority of these industrial builders were the sons of parents whose income averaged less than $1200 a year.

"It is the captains of industry of the past quarter of a century came from the ranks of the masses, the captains of industry of the next quarter-century are going to come from the same source. The bankers, manufacturers and merchants of the next generation will be the sons of the farmers, professional men and wage-workers of today.

"And why is it that the boys and girls of the so-called employee classes become the industrial leaders of America? It is because individual success depends upon certain qualities. It is because those certain qualities are most easily developed in the home of a working family. When any great captain of industry wants a young man to represent him he seldom goes to the home of the rich, he goes rather to the home of the 'work-people'."

So there is more than hope for all of us; the odds are in our favor; and nobody should feel discouraged about his chances for success unless he is the son of a millionaire.

RIPPLING RHYMES
 ETERNALS

He said, "Jemima is a prize, a gem among the girls; in vain the gifted artist tries to paint her golden curls, and when she can paint her eyes my heart is won." She said, "He is a fine young man, all wool and three feet wide; his whiskers are a dainty tan, with kecks he's supplied, and in his handsome tin sedan will travel as his bride." So they were wed, and pounds of rice came wishing through the air; the pastor said, "I'm glad to splice so sumptuous a pair; I'm sure they'll put up lots of ice ere they have snowy hair." But he was prone to piffle a dime when once that dime was won; to him the program most sublime was heard: minted mon; he thought it was a low-down crime to spend a great for fun. And he regarded chicken feed as something more to spend; to buy up junk she didn't want was her chief aim and end; she was inclined to give no heed to maxims bankers love. Her treasures glimmered in the light, just as they did before; her husband's whiskers were as bright as in the day of yore, and yet each day they had a fight and a race, walked the floor. It's well if bride like roses blown, make ushers stand aghast; it's well for bridegrooms that they own a spread of whiskers vast; but sympathetic hearts alone will make a marriage last.

SOME THINGS THEY CAN'T DO
 Now that some of the labor unions have boycotted everything that doesn't bear the union label it is going to be pretty hard for their members, as they will not be allowed to own or ride in a Ford, read a Bible or consult a dictionary, buy any pack-age crackers or oatmeal, eat any bananas, butter, potatoes, etc., or buy anything in a 10-cent store.—[Pathfinder.]

EGYPT'S GARRIE CATT
 The Garrie Chapman Catt of Egypt has been discovered, in the person of Madame Anesh Hanum el Rasheedy, president of the Mothers of the Future of Egypt Society. Pharaoh's daughters want the vote, and they want it now. Madame President says: "The Koran says that women should behave toward their husbands in the manner as their husbands should behave toward them, according to what is just." If the line of reasoning is somewhat foreign to the aim is familiar, the methods are likewise.—[New York World.]

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT
 If only your soul, be a fool. Who loves his landlady shall inherit the stars.
 Life loves its lollipops and hates alarm clocks.
 A deep sigh may also mean indignation.—[Richmond Times-Dispatch.]

CLOSE-UPS OF EUROPE
 BY S. FRED HOGUE

No event since the German invasion of Belgium and the sinking of the Lusitania has perhaps so shocked and intrigued the people of the United States as the announcement that Great Britain and the other Allied powers would permit the return of the Turks to Europe without a struggle.

Just ten years ago the Balkan peoples began their drive to free Christian populations from Mohammedan rule. Those ten years have been the most bloody known to history; and the decade ends with a government of Asiatic Turks returning in triumph to the European territory from which they were driven, more arrogant and more fanatical than any other Moslem government in the last fifty years.

What does it all mean? Why have the Allies flinched before a Moslem army? To answer these questions with a show of reason one must know something of the state of mind of the Allied peoples.

Two months ago I wrote from Paris to the effect that the hopeful sign of the times was that the peoples of all the European countries were heartily fighting, that I did not believe there was a sovereign in Europe that could send its forces against those of any other governments unless it were to repel an invasion.

I did not then anticipate so serious an attempt of the Turk to return to Europe. If I had I would be in Constantinople now. I considered that the only menace was that of one European people attacking another.

But it is now apparent that the wily Turk emissaries had been equally astute in discovering that the peoples who bore the brunt of the World War were weary, that they preferred to return to their homes and take up arms except in their own defense.

Europe is both morally and physically exhausted. The reaction to the ardor of the defense of four unengaged years is a powerful political undertow.

I can picture the defection of the British statesmen when they found that even the French would not join with them in the defense of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus; when they learned that the Labor party in Parliament would place every obstruction in the way of a war against the Turk, even to the extent of leading the country in a general strike.

The whole of Europe is as exhausted as were the people of France after Waterloo. The French then permitted every claim to be riveted again upon their backs that had been burst during the Revolution. They forgot the sacrifices of thirty years and permitted the monarchy to be revived, because it promised a period of repose.

That is the existing state of mind in Europe. By invading the Balkans and retreating to the Nile and Africa the Turk is not occupying any British, French or Italian territory. There is no menace of the immediate invasion of any of these countries, and even the soldiers who were heroes during the World War are disinclined to return to the trenches. They have had time to reflect on the horrors of the war, and they have thrown themselves into the breach. It is not a pleasant picture to look upon; but it is the one that fate has painted. Europe has suffered a moral decadence still permeating to progress than physical exhaustion.

Nearly four months ago the electorate of the south of Ireland ratified by a big majority the constitution creating the Free State. Yet during this period there has been more destruction of life and property than in any similar period in the last 100 years.

Ireland is faced by famine this year, both in the Free State and in Ulster. In the south of Ireland the harvest has been almost a failure, not by reason of a bad season, but because those who should have done the planting and harvesting have been engaged in bitter internecine warfare. In Ulster the big industries are faced by bankruptcy, because they have not received the necessary raw material from the Free State and because there is no market in Ireland, outside Ulster, for their finished products.

What are the conflicting political problems that have brought to the Free State and Ulster "not peace, but the sword"? Why have the Irish made, to date, such a failure in governing themselves? Is the nature of the people so inherently belligerent that they cannot live together in peace?

During my sojourn in the south of Ireland last summer I learned something of the contributing causes that have produced such disastrous effects.

In the first place, the question in the Irish Free State is not one of religion. The Free State is predominantly Catholic, but both the Catholic clergy and the laity are divided. The elder heads of the church, with a few exceptions, favor the Free State constitution, but the young priests, who have cast their lot with the irregulars, who call themselves Republicans.

The struggle, in a general way, is one between youth and age. The young men are inflamed by patriotic passion. They see with eyes of flame, and their deeds are written in blood. Those who have passed the fortieth year see with

Wife of Missing Calexico Postmaster Returns; Says She Knows Nothing

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH] CALEXICO, Sept. 25.—Mrs. Frank Rosch, wife of the missing Calexico postmaster, who recently disappeared leaving behind a shortage of between $6000 and $10,000 in postal funds, has returned to Calexico with the story that she knows nothing of her husband's financial difficulties and that she left him in a small town in Kansas, close to Kansas City. She became ill on the trip and asked to be sent home. He bought a ticket and hid her good-by, continuing on his way East.

She stated that after they left Calexico on the last night, they went to Los Angeles where they stayed three days and then went to San Francisco. From there they started East with her 5-year-old son, stopping at Denver, Omaha and Kansas City. There she was taken ill and asked to return home.

They started West, but at a town believed to be Hutchinson he told his young Mexican bride that he must return East and sent her on to her home in Mexico, stating that he would either write or return in a few days. Postal inspectors Jarvis and McKean, investigating the books at the office here, have finished their work and have returned to Los Angeles, where the records were placed before the Federal grand jury. It is expected that Walter Cockley, assistant postmaster, will be appointed to fill the vacancy.

They started West, but at a town believed to be Hutchinson he told his young Mexican bride that he must return East and sent her on to her home in Mexico, stating that he would either write or return in a few days. Postal inspectors Jarvis and McKean, investigating the books at the office here, have finished their work and have returned to Los Angeles, where the records were placed before the Federal grand jury. It is expected that Walter Cockley, assistant postmaster, will be appointed to fill the vacancy.

AUTO WINS RACE FOR BOY'S LIFE

Injured Lad Carried at High Speed to Office of Doctor at Calexico

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH] CALEXICO, Sept. 25.—His leg laid open to the bone from heel to knee, Francisco Martinez, aged 12 years, was brought five miles in a racing automobile to successful surgical treatment at the hands of Dr. R. O. Thompson at the physician's office. The boy, a son of R. Martinez, of the Martinez ranch, decided to go into an irrigating canal at the ranch by the simple method of sliding down its slippery bank.

His body had got in good motion when his heel stuck into the end of a broken scythe blade imbedded in the bank. The point of the knife drove clear to the bone and cut the flesh cleanly to above the calf of the leg at the back of the knee joint where it stopped its work only because the boy's foot had reached the bottom of the canal and stopped.

The screams of the lad brought help promptly. After first aid efforts at stopping the flow of blood from the several smaller arteries which were severed, the boy was hurried in an automobile to the city. Though suffering from loss of blood and severe pain from the frightful cut, the boy was reported today to be getting along as well as could be expected.

They started West, but at a town believed to be Hutchinson he told his young Mexican bride that he must return East and sent her on to her home in Mexico, stating that he would either write or return in a few days. Postal inspectors Jarvis and McKean, investigating the books at the office here, have finished their work and have returned to Los Angeles, where the records were placed before the Federal grand jury. "I am a Storage Egg"

Biddy laid me early one Spring morning.
Several hours later a man carefully picked me up and took me away.
Next day, while I was being candled, I heard a man say: "What a fine Egg! Just the kind to store!"

One day I was taken out of my frigid home, again candled, and finally arrived in the kitchen of Mrs. Careful Housewife.
That night came the proudest moment of my life—when the family exclaimed, "Where did you get such fine eggs, Mother? We thought that the hens didn't lay in the Fall."

Yes, it would take a pretty shrewd palate to tell me from a fresh egg.
I cook just as well and taste just as good, and COST FROM 10c TO 15c A DOZEN LESS.
Use me in the PRIZE EGG RECIPES and enjoy them as much as when fresh eggs were plentiful.

JACK SCOUTED SIKI'S CHANCES

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
MONTREAL, Sept. 25.—When Jack Dempsey was here on last Friday night en route to Havelock, N. B., on a hunting trip, he said that he was asked about Georges Carpentier and Siki, the Senegalese challenger, for the French title, and expressed confidence that Carpentier would defeat the Senegalese. He considered the latter was of unknown quality and did not consider he had a chance against the French champion. That he himself would meet "Battling" Siki was made evident from a remark he made to a reporter. When asked if he was willing to meet Wills, he said:

"I am not only willing, but anxious, for my purse is getting low."

The impression he gave was that he would meet any man in the world, regardless of race or color.

SKETCH OF BATTLING SIKI

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The physical make-up of Battling Siki has been likened to that of the leopard. In action his great muscles play fascinatingly under a copper skin. His form is in striking contrast to the graceful Carpentier, whose foot movement is that of the cat.

Siki is typical of the bristled Senegalese soldiers brought to the western front during the World War. Sturdy, possessed of great strength and endurance and an irrefragable foe when excited, he crouches and bundles together his massive muscled shoulders much after the fashion of Jack Dempsey.

A broad grin, exposing the perfect white teeth so typical of the Negro, lights up his face as he goes into static combat. At times this grin narrows until it becomes somewhat of a leer, perhaps to frighten an adversary.

In all of his ring engagements in France, Siki has been successful, but in none of them prior to his bout with Carpentier did he display any terrific punching power. He knocked out Harry Reeves, a former light-heavyweight champion of England, in the sixth round of a match in Marseilles and received the decision over Marcel Nilles in fifteen rounds in Paris.

After the latter bout Carpentier's manager, Francois Descamps, who is credited as being a shrewd judge of fighting ability, asserted Siki was such a poor fighter he would not permit Carpentier to meet him. Siki also outpointed Paul Journe, the lumbering French heavyweight who visited the United States and helped to train Carpentier for his fight in which he met defeat at the hands of Jack Dempsey. Journe twice was defeated by heavyweights of the second class while in the United States.

The success of the Senegalese possibly will start talk of a match between him and Harry Wills, the American negro heavyweight who is being groomed as a prospect for a championship bout with Dempsey.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Battling Siki has been offered terms for a contest either with Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, or Harry Greb, Pittsburgh, American light-heavyweight title-holder, Thomas F. O'Rourke, matchmaker of the Athletic Club, said tonight in confirming Associated Press dispatches of a proposition made to the conqueror of Georges Carpentier.

O'Rourke, however, said that his offer was for $25,000 or a privilege of 25 per cent of the gate receipts instead of the cabled figure of $20,000.

O'Rourke tonight had received no direct answer from Siki's manager. Until he does, he declined to indicate what attitude he would take toward the Senegalese boxer.

GATES TIRES

The Tire with the Wider and Thicker Tread

What a Pity It Would Be—

With 30% to 50% bigger mileage in a cord tire—now delivered to you for nearly the price of a fabric—

What a pity it would be to lose a thousand or two of those extra miles by having the rubber tread wear out, exposing the cords to the bruising jabs of every stone in the road.

That's why a wider and thicker tread is especially important in cord tires—and that's why Gates Super-Tread Cords have trebled in sales the past 60 days.

JESS NOT SURPRISED

Willard Figured Carpenter Was Due for a Trimming; Looks Forward to Early Date With Dempsey

Carpenter's defeat is no surprise to me. There are several good boys in this country who could have taken his measure had they been given the chance. Harry Greb could beat Carpenter every day in the week. The French idol was built up to meet Dempsey. He gained a lot of notoriety, but never beat anybody. His conqueror will be hailed as a wonder man, but he will have to beat some other good man before his real worth as a fighter will be known.

This is the statement given out by Jess Willard when interviewed on the Carpenter-Siki fight. Willard never regarded Carpenter as much on account of his being beaten by Billy Papke and Frank Klaus, and while Gunboat Smith lost on a foul, he had Carpenter beaten at the time the foul was committed. Carpenter gained his reputation beating Joe Beckett, a man who has taken more Brodies than Fred Fulton.

"I have always contended that Dempsey didn't accomplish any great feat when he whipped Carpentier. Now that Carpentier has been beaten, the present heavy-weight champion will have to scratch his name off the list, and it brings the day and date he will have to meet me a little closer."

Jack Kearns, who has been a fighter in the States who will be able to put the old test to the Battling Siki, will have to show, before the American boxing fans are going to take his victory very seriously. Over confidence had kept him from the things which helped beat Carpentier.

SCIENTISTS PITY POOR JACK

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Scientists and anthropologists at Field Museum, and the University of Chicago took out their charts and reference books and looked over an assortment of negro skulls tonight after they had read of the Siki-Carpentier affair in Paris yesterday. The consensus of opinion was that if and when the Siki person meets up with Jack Dempsey, the champion stands an excellent chance of being clouted for a row of dog houses. The lofty-brained and bespectacled scientists did not put it in just those words but that is what they meant.

Battling Siki, it appears from all the records, is of a high-boned tribe. The anthropologists point out that Senegal produces a minimum of civilization and a maximum of savagery. One does not survive there without having to overcome a lot of things that would put a white man in the first round. Battling Siki, they say, looks like the fittest of the survivors. He has the arms and shoulders and chest of a comparatively recent ape ancestor. Above the shoulders, they admit, he has not much except resting place for his hat, but what brain he possesses functions amazingly on what to do in a rumble. There is not a poet or a cake eater or a statesman in his pedigree and he has not been softened by the luxuries of so-called civilization. He is a head with a maul gets no further than to put the maul out of business. He is Dempsey's equal in physique and it is not too old for rough action.

Anthropologists say that Dempsey easily could run Siki out of gas if anything but he occupied the ring, but admit the champion will need a horseshoe in each mit for Siki packs a punch that is likely to send several generations of Dempseys ears ringing.

DUSKY FIGHTER MUST TAKE ON TUNNEY FIRST

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Battling Siki, Senegalese conqueror of Georges Carpentier, punched himself into a fair way to make a lot of money when he stopped the French idol and took from him the heavyweight championship of Europe and the world's light-heavyweight crown.

And numerous managers of heavyweight contenders and near-contenders hustled themselves issuing challenges to the French negro. But it remained for "Doc" Bagley, manager of Gene Tunney, to make the first move. Bagley, who has been a manager of several of the best fighters in the world, today announced Dempsey's chief challenger was anxious to meet Siki.

she sometimes ventured, the curiously pretty flush that came at times into her cheeks, making them and the faded eyes almost beautiful.

Once or twice it happened that Christine settled herself on a footstool on the other side of her mother to listen, too; and the little old lady experienced a furtive content with the situation as Edgerton and her daughter exchanged pleasantries and volleys of gay badinage across her knitting.

As for Edgerton and Christine, they were now on terms of intimacy almost careless. With Diana he was different.

The day of his bitter outbreak when riding with Diana, Edgerton, terribly ashamed of himself, had gone once more to her and admitted that her rebuke was a just one; that he was an ungrateful dog, disloyal to the hand that fed him, and not worthy of Diana's regard.

And the girl had forgiven him very sweetly, not with much enthusiasm for his rapidly advancing intimacy with Christine had begun to perplex her.

But his intimacy with Christine advanced very swiftly; so rapidly that Diana became fully aware of it only when it was already in complete flower. And she wondered a little—and, looking at the girl, wondered less.

ADAMSON'S ADVENTURES His Better Self Gets Revenge By O. Jacobson

NOTE: "The Times" Daily Wad Comic-Strip Contests Has Been Discontinued Until Further Notice. The Wad family, whose daily adventures in Los Angeles have amused Times readers for the past year, during which time more than $1500 has been paid by the prizes for available ideas for the Wad strip, demands a vacation. Its members point to the fact that more things of a strenuous nature have happened in the twelve months than to any other family in Los Angeles and they insist upon a rest. Watt and Elva are going East to college, and Dunn has to go to school in the states. Mr. Wad is taking Mrs. Wad and the baby to Honolulu, and Tight says he will go along if Mr. Wad pays his way, not otherwise. For these reasons the strip has been discontinued for the present. The prize-winning ideas submitted during the last week and possibly a few others will appear in this space.

OROTHY DIX TALKS

Hypnotism of Love

BY DOROTHY DIX

A marriage has just been annulled because the woman claimed that she was under a hypnotic spell when she entered into the holy estate and was, therefore, not in a condition to understand the nature and quality of her acts. My word, but that legal decision makes a breach in the marriage contract that you could drive an army truck through, for ninety-nine couples out of a hundred could take their Bible oaths that they were hypnotized when they were married and hadn't the faintest idea of what they were doing.

Probably nobody in full possession of his or her faculties would ever get married, because as long as men and women can see clearly and argue logically they lack the courage to take the hundred-to-one shot on happiness that matrimony is. They get cold feet that refuse to support them to the altar.

They know that if they guess right they win paradise on earth, but that if they guess wrong they doom themselves to hell before their time, because there is no middle ground in marriage. It's either bliss, or misery. And the odds against winning out in the matrimonial game make a roulette wheel seem like sure money. Perhaps in their acquaintance they can pick out one or two marriages that have been successes, but the failure, love has gone into the discard and husbands and wives quarrel, and nag, and fret, and play for patience to endure each other.

Therefore, as long as men and women maintain their mental poise, they see nothing in the world to compensate them for the risks it involves, and they conclude it is better to keep the ills they have than to dare those they know not of.

"Undoubtedly," reflects the woman, "it would be delightful to have the strong arm of a husband on which to lean, and some one to protect me, but how do I know that if I marry that I will not get a weakling that I will have to support, or a tightwad out of whom I will have to goshawk every penny? There is no way of finding out before hand what sort of a husband a man will make, so I had better hang on to my job, and my individual pocket-book."

"It would be fine and dandy," thinks the man, "to have a nice little home to come to at evening, with a smiling wife and a good dinner waiting for me, but how do I know that the woman I marry will not be one of those dandies who spends her afternoon at the movies, or clubs, or better bridge, and who stops at the delicatessen store on her way home, and gets some cold junk that she feeds her husband upon, which she calls a dinner? I cannot know before hand whether a woman is domestic or not, so my business of caution warns me to stick to the club chef."

"It would be heavenly," say the man and woman both, "to have some one upon whose love and loyalty you could count, no matter what happened; to have a companionship of which you could never tire; to have an understanding and sympathy and tenderness that never fails; but what if you get a husband or wife who was a champion knocker, or who nagged, or who was a tyrant on the hearth who deprived you of every vestige of personal liberty? There is no acid test that you can apply in advance that will enable you to know the kind of a life partner anyone will make, so we think we had better stick to our single blessedness instead of qualifying for double wretchedness."

So say men and women while they can see straight and are capable of seeing the situation. Then come Cupid, the hypnotist, and makes a few passes over them, and fixes them with his glittering eye, and it is all off. Logic goes by the board, the red danger sign is erected by their unhappily married friends for a warning die out. Caution is flung to the winds, and they rush into matrimony without ever a doubt that they are going to be happy ever after.

And what else but hypnotism can explain the mental attitude of those in love? What else makes people make the unsuitable marriages they do except that they commit those insane acts while in a hypnotic trance, and without knowing what they do?

What makes Mary see a hero of romance in some ordinary little two-by-four jelly bean, without an idea in his head? What makes Jane think some anemic, spindly-shanked youth with watery eyes and receding chin is so handsome that she wonders the movies don't get him? What makes an intellectual man think that he could spend forever to the bird-like prattle of some pretty moron who never read a book in her life, and thinks Czechoslovakia is a new breakfast food? What makes a poor and ambitious youth believe that a girl who is nothing but a living fashion plate is destined by heaven as a helpmeet for a man who has his own way to make in the world?

The only answer is hypnotism. They are under a hypnotic spell that has deprived them of their reason and will power for the time being, and during this hiatus they commit the folly that they spend the balance of their lives repenting. The curious thing about this hypnotism of love, however, is that it is self-induced. We make with our own imagination the glorious and glory with which we clothe others, and as long as we see it shining in our fancies it is just as good as the real thing.

It doesn't make any difference whether a woman is as beautiful as Venus or as ugly enough to stop the clock, if she looks good to her husband, it doesn't matter whether a man's wife is as extravagant and thrifty, as long as he believes her to be a good manager. It doesn't matter whether she is tireless or entertaining as long as he is interested in listening to her. It doesn't matter whether a man is handsome or homely, clever or brilliant, a Sir Galahad or a rounder, as long as his wife thinks he is the greatest man on earth. The spell is on them, and they see what they want to see.

They're happy and satisfied, and that is why nobody should ever wake married people up. Let them dream on.

Dorothy Dix's talks appear in this paper every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

The Speed of the Fingers
The fingers of the right hand are quicker and more accurate than those of the left.

The ring finger of the left hand shows speed whenever it can work with the forefinger of the right hand; and it slows down noticeably when it must team with the middle finger of the left hand.

Two fingers working together are faster than one going it alone, and a combination of two fingers on opposite hands is faster than two fingers on the same hand.

Practice tends to increase the rate of the slow ones more than the fast ones.

Question: What is the inscription on the bronze plaque of Theodore Roosevelt which was given to Michael Collins by American friends?
J. W. C.

Answer: This plaque is in the Government House, Dublin, that was occupied by Michael Collins and bears the paragraph which might be called the creed of strenuous life. "I wish to preach, not the doctrine of ignoble ease, but the doctrine of the strenuous life, of the life of effort, and of labor, and of the life of the highest form of success that comes not to the man who desires more ease and peace but to him who does more and shrinks from danger, hardship, and bitter toil and who, out of these, wins the splendid and ultimate triumph."

Q: Why do magazines have stars on the covers?
G. L. P.

A: This is a distinguishing mark placed on the covers of new books and magazines to attract attention. When copies remain unsold at the end of the sales period the covers or whole copies are returned to the publisher and are allowed. In this way subscribers with the prohibition of the liquor traffic is a fallacy. We are building an outfall sewer because science teaches us that we must do something to prevent the evils of alcoholism. For about a century scientific men have been studying the effects of alcohol on the human system. These men were not puritans nor religious fanatics. Many of them were themselves users of alcoholic liquors. But they have made some very careful and painstaking investigations and the results of these investigations have been embodied in our school text books and taught in our schools for half a century. If the statements made in our standard text books and taught as facts in all our schools are true, alcohol is a poison and its use other than as a medicine to be used under the direction of a physician should be prohibited. If these statements are not true the opponents of prohibition should disprove them. I have never heard of any attempt to disprove these statements.

For several decades large employers of labor especially the railroad companies have discriminated against men who used intoxicants. These men were not puritans nor religious fanatics. They did not rest on religious grounds at all. They claimed that the users of intoxicants were our unreliable, unworthy and inefficient. If these statements were not true, the labor unions should have vigorously resisted this encroachment upon the personal liberty of the worker and bitterly denounced the corporations who unjustly discriminated against competent men without cause. I have never heard of any attempt to disprove the charges that alcoholism causes inefficiency. Abusing the poor dead and gone Puritans is no argument.

From the beginning the war upon alcohol has been based upon scientific principles. The reply to the charges made upon scientific investigation that alcohol caused physical degeneracy, inefficiency, poverty and crime has always been a loud outcry about puritanism and fanaticism and hypocrisy. Now this is sheer nonsense. There is no puritanism nor fanaticism nor hypocrisy about carefully prepared statements about the effects of alcohol upon the human system nor the relation of alcohol to inefficiency or crime or poverty or insanity. These are scientific questions. The enemies of prohibition should discuss them from a scientific standpoint. Calling names is not scientific discussion.

As for the Turk. Instead of being a dreadful example, he is a good illustration of the benefits of prohibition. No one claims that prohibition produces all the Christian virtues. All that anyone claims is that prohibition promotes sobriety and that sobriety promotes health and efficiency. Prohibition has made the Turk sober and efficient as a fighting man. The Turk won Constantinople because he was sober and efficient. Lay off abusing preachers and puritans for abusing preachers and John Barleycorn, and train your guns on the doctors and scientists and efficiency experts. They are John's real enemies.

All that anyone claims is that prohibition promotes sobriety and that sobriety promotes health and efficiency. Prohibition has made the Turk sober and efficient as a fighting man.
